

Telemessenger Solutions sells Video communication subsidiary to Cityblock PLC

19th June 2007, Christchurch, NZ

TeleMessenger Solutions Ltd., developers of advanced voice and video solutions, today announced that its subsidiary, video communication company Springdoo has been acquired by UK-based Cityblock PLC, a company set up by Martin Higginson, founder of mobile media company Monstermob Group PLC.

The acquisition was satisfied by the issue of 3.2m shares in Cityblock. Cityblock which is listed on the AIM, will continue to use the Springdoo brand. The completion of the deal also marks the launch of a new version of Springdoo with a new set of innovative features that allows anyone in the UK to instantly record and broadcast video messages from any 3G phone.

Martin Higginson, Chairman of Cityblock PLC says, "The acquisition of Springdoo is a milestone event for Cityblock. It marks our entry into the mobile and Internet space with what I believe to be one of the most exciting pieces of technology I have ever seen. In time the mobile Internet and PC Internet will converge, Springdoo allows the user to converge these technologies today in a very easy to use manner."

Christchurch-based TeleMessenger first developed the concept for Springdoo in late 2004 with the goal to make communication simpler, faster, and richer. Launched in 2005 as an audio email service, Springdoo soon evolved into a video email service. In mid 2006 Springdoo added features like video blogging and broadcasting widgets to tap into the social networking and video broadcasting boom.

"We're extremely proud of what we've accomplished over the last two years," says Michael, "with just a small team here in New Zealand, a very limited budget and practically no marketing we've carved out a niche for ourselves as leaders in video emailing and are now competing with the likes of YouTube in the video broadcasting space."

The sale of Springdoo has freed the TeleMessenger team to concentrate on other areas of its business which includes further development of MediCall™, its automated telephone-based medication and appointment reminder product. MediCall™ is currently involved in a trial with the University of Canterbury Health Sciences Department. It's also working closely with the NZ Health IT Cluster and the National Institute for Health Innovation to develop audio and video based communication solutions.
